Michael's practice involves all aspects of commercial real estate transactions. He has represented institutional clients and developers in their real estate activities in Texas and throughout the United States. His development experience includes the structuring, negotiation and documentation of development partnerships, joint ventures, and other entities for real estate development, and the negotiation and preparation of financing documents for real estate development, including both construction and permanent financing. He has also represented both landlords and tenants on numerous large commercial leases. Over the past few years, Michael has represented various clients in connection with the negotiation and documentation of synthetic lease facilities to facilitate those clients' real estate development activities.
